

Discover ▾

Log in | Sign up

The Great Pepsi War

👁 20 ✓ 0 ★ 3

Chapter 1 by Max Klein

By the year 2024, PepsiCo. had become the most profitable company in the entire world, owning multiple Caribbean islands that were their own nation, known as the Pepsi Isles. Eventually, in the year 2022, PepsiCo. became so profitable and huge that they eventually created a military for the Pepsi Isles, and began experimenting with nuclear weaponry. PepsiCo. had already moved their international headquarters out of the U.S. in 2018, so the U.S. began to view PepsiCo. less as a company and more as a threat to peace similar to North Korea. Even North Korea was fearful of their military capability.

Then in 2023, the Pepsi Isles mobilized their military and began annexing surrounding islands. Even Jamaica began to come under siege in The Battle of Jamaica, which was a humiliating defeat for the Jamaicans. Jamaica became the first Pepsian province. Tension reached an all-time peak in 2024, when PepsiCo. rigged the U.S. general election, resulting in Jaden Smith being sworn in as POTUS. The public was outraged, and they stormed the White House and trampled 42 secret service agents and ended President Smith's 13 hour-long presidency.

From the chaos of the Pepsi Rebellion emerged a new leader: Steve Buscemi. Buscemi walked up to the President's podium in the press conference room of the White House and declared himself Supreme Leader of the Democratic People's Republic of America. Supreme Leader Buscemi immediately declared war on PepsiCo. and the Pepsi Isles, resulting in at least 20 million men between the ages of 18 and 30 being recruited to fight. But when they sent out the recruits to war, they only used 2 massive transport ships, so the Pepsians were easily able to locate and sink the ships, killing everyone on board.

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account

Facing public outrage and a strong anti-war effort emerging, Supreme Leader Buscemi made a difficult decision: to capture newborn infants and train them to combat the Pepsians using brutal and ruthless tactics requiring extreme displays of teamwork and coordination. This child soldier program was finally implemented in combat in 2031, and the time it took had a major effect on the environment and infrastructure of the DPRA. The cities were mainly composed of ruins, the lush forests and wide open plains of the wilderness were transformed into jagged desert. Bandits plagued the formerly great highways, and the public lived in constant fear of another Pepsian bombing. In between the killing of the recruits and the child soldier program's implementation little retaliation on the part of the DPRA was done. In addition, the destruction was not confined to the DPRA; the same landscapes were seen all across Europe and Asia, now the mainland Pepsian provinces.

Our story begins in the hellish year of 2036, where the DPRA is desperately attempting to defend what little land they have left on the East coast. Our hero, Freck, lives in what remains of the DPRA's capital. Every day is a struggle to survive, trying to evade looters and marauders, attempting to get necessary supplies, and finding a safe place to hit the hay. Freck must move constantly to avoid confrontation by bandits, who are known for shooting first, and asking questions later. On one day, Freck was rooting through a few garbage bins to maybe find a nutritious meal, when he is distracted by a strange noise. Our hero goes to investigate, and ends up finding...

Write a draft for chapter 2 of 8 (1 draft)

❗ You need to login before writing - click here

Continue the story

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account

☐ Flag as mature ☐ Receive feedback

Write a comment...

About

Rooms

Feedback

See more of Story Wars

Login

or

Create new account